

1. Remove the 'Terroir & Origin section' completely because some of the details like flavor & taste, tribes details and features or properties mentioned are not correct for some honeys.

2. Following are the Honey SKUs

- Organic Wild Forest Honey
- Stingless Bee Honey
- Tribal Forest Honey
- HoneyDew Honey
- Raktbeej Honey

So in case of SUMOSTA, the above names along with the product image will appear in the 'Raw Honey' tab of the website. The source like the forest name, location, harvested by which tribe, produce by which specific bee etc should be the highlight immediately after the product name. Every product will be offered in 2 sizes – 250g and 500g. Below the image, there will be details about the product and few informative FAQs specific to product in drop down form or the way you feel is best suitable. Refer Royal Bee Brothers web page for all the detailed information about these SKUs and present it in a way which should not feel a literal copy paste. Please note take only product specific FAQs as there are few generic FAQs about honey as well in their sections which we can avoid. For example if its about Raktbeej honey, we can write details information and FAQ only peculiar to Raktbeej honey like source, which bee, which floral or tree source, benefits of raktbeej which you can clearly spot if you refer RBB's faqs related to Raktbeej honey.

3. Under 'Shop' tab, keep only 'Raw honey' and 'Gift boxes, combos'. Remove 'Honey Sticks' & 'Spreads'. We will add those at the right suitable time when we launch them.
4. Refer following line which keeps on moving

The details like Sundarbans etc are not correct as we are not sourcing anything from Sundarbans. Instead of these moving line we can present in some way like the Honey is raw, authentic, un-processed, single-source, sourced from India's untouched landscapes & pristine forests. May be in place of 'TERROIR & ORIGINS' section like a highlight or pointers as you feel aesthetic.

5. Please refer the below screenshot

SUMOSTA Indulgence that cares needs to be bold and little big font and SUMOSTA in Black font and again SUMOSTA indulgence that cares in occur yellow fonts seems like a repetition. 'Indulgence not equal to guilt' positioning of words are very important. Indulgence is first line, 'not equals to (symbol)' is second line and then Guilt should be the next 3rd line. Currently it seems very unorganized. Also the color of the font 'not equals to (symbol)' and 'guilt' is the same.

SUMOSTA • INDULGENCE THAT CARES

Indulgence

≠ Guilt

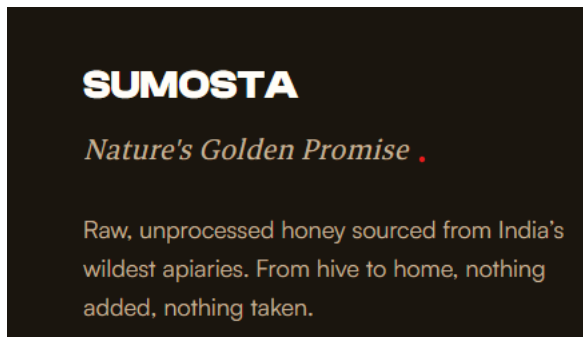

6. If you scroll the website – on the very top it says sumosta indulgence that cares and then indulgence not equals to guilt and immediately below you scroll it again says the same thing in Core purpose. Sumosta indulgence that cares and indulgence not equals to guilt. Isn't this repetitive again? You might remove it from the core purpose may be.
7. Under Shop / Raw honey section – Add a 'Trial Box' tab with '5 Elements' meaning small 60g jars of all the 5 honey SKUs in a secondary box packaging. Add a image of it. Royal Bee Brothers are doing '7 sister' on their website for their 7 honey SKUs. The similar way.
8. In 'Our Story' tab add a proper image with SUMOSTA Jar. Currently it shows as SUVARNA Honey. Remove Starbucks coffee cup.
9. Refer below screenshot

Don't mention anything about FSSAI. In fact we have applied for it. We don't have one. So remove the FSSAI Section completely. We will mention after we receive the details. And in Registered Address & Business Address on the right, mention the complete addresses please.

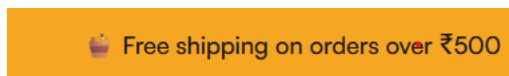

10. Under contact – the mobile number mentioned is incorrect. The correct number is 9137881791. If you see, if you go to the contacts tab at the bottom of the website, the contact details and the sentence write up for lets connect displayed is incorrect & different than the one you see while just scrolling down the web in Get in Touch Connect with us section.

11. Refer below screenshot. Use uniform taglines – ‘Indulgence that cares’ in place of Nature’s golden promise. And this line is tagline of some other brand as well so we can’t use it.

12. Refer below screenshot. Change it to 499 please as under shipping policy we have mentioned 499 so let's maintain consistency.

13. The color of the below font is very light and not readable. Make the color dark and readable.

For further inquiries or clarifications about our shipping procedures, our customer service team is always available. We are here to ensure your shopping experience is as smooth as honey.

15. Please replace the 'OUR STORY' section as below. You can suitably keep the images as per the narrative sections. Also can we please create an AI video of this whole story, narrative as I feel visuals are more interesting than reading the whole thing as it takes time to read and people may lose interest after a point of time.

The Sweet Tooth & The Corporate Toll

Being founders hailing from the Gujarati and Marwari families, a deep love for food and an inherent sweet tooth are practically woven into our DNA. But as we plunged into the high-stress rhythms of modern corporate life & entrepreneurship, that love for flavor hit a wall. Trapped in endless workdays, we defaulted to quick fixes: processed snacks loaded with refined sugars. Before long, the toll caught up with us in the form of stubborn gut health issues and chronic fatigue. As lifelong foodies, we completely refused a life of joyless, cardboard-tasting dietary restrictions. We wanted an "indulgence that cares."

The Sumo Inspiration: Fueling True Strength

That search for balance led us to an unexpected inspiration: the ancient philosophy of the Sumo. True Sumos are masters of unyielding power, absolute mental calm, and flawless ritualistic discipline. They don't starve their bodies with restrictive, empty "zero-calorie" diets; they build their resilience through nutrient-dense fueling to conquer high-stress daily challenges. We realized that is exactly what the modern hustle required—not restriction, but powerful, intentional nourishment.

The Supermarket Illusion vs. Wild Reality

To find this ultimate ancestral fuel, we turned to honey. But what we found on supermarket shelves shocked us. Most commercial honey is industrially dead—heavily heated, stripped of live enzymes, and stretched with hidden sugar syrups. We realized most consumers are entirely unaware that authentic, raw wild forest honey even exists. They have never experienced the complex flavors and superior medicinal benefits of honey left completely untouched by industrial factories.

Sourcing From India's Untamed Ecosystems

We bypassed commercial supply chains and went straight into the wild. Our quest took us deep into the most remote micro-regions and pristine forests of India. Partnering with indigenous bee-foragers who have lived in harmony with these lands for generations, we harvested honey exactly as nature intended it: unprocessed, unfiltered, and alive with raw nutrients.

The Birth of a Daily Ritual

We brought these wild forest honeys into our own lives, turning them into a daily ritual—a mindful spoonful for morning power and a soothing reset after a chaotic boardroom day. The results were life-changing. Our gut health restored itself, our energy stabilized, and our sweet cravings were deeply satisfied without a single drop of guilt.

SUMOSTA was born to bring that exact breakthrough straight to your dining table. We did the hard work of traversing remote forests and ensuring rigorous, batch-wise lab verification so you can focus entirely on the pure joy of your daily wellness ritual.

Welcome to SUMOSTA. Welcome to Indulgence that Cares.

In continuity to story section, insert ‘Meet the Founders’ section

SECTION: Meet the Founders

Designer Note: Place two cartoonized/stylized vector illustrations of Sumo wrestlers standing side-by-side in a traditional Sumo stance. The bodies should be playful illustrations, but the faces will be clean, high-resolution cut-outs of Yatin and Rishabh smiling. Take only the face cut outs from the below pictures or ask for their more smiling close-ups face cuts if required.

[Section Headline]: Meet the Heavyweights Behind the Honey.

[Section Sub-headline]: When a Gujarati and a Marwari team up to launch a food brand, two things are absolutely guaranteed: the numbers will always balance, and the food will always taste phenomenal. We stepped into the SUMOSTA ring to prove that you can conquer the modern daily hustle without giving up the joy of eating.

Title: Co-Founder & COO | The Soul of SUMOSTA

- The Sumo Stance: Dominating the ring in Business Operations, Logistics, and Sales.
- The Profile: If Yatin is the blueprint, Rishabh is the engine that drives it forward. 17. In FAQs, the following needs to change or add or remove.

Add the following FAQs and suitable answers to it

- What makes SUMOSTA different from other commercial Brands?
SUMOSTA offers raw forest honey sourced from India's wild forests, where indigenous honeybees gather nectar from diverse native flora. Unlike most commercial branded honey, which is often heavily filtered, blended, or heat-processed for uniformity, our honey is minimally filtered and carefully preserved in its natural form. This keeps its authentic aroma, regional character, rich taste, and natural goodness intact.
- Where do your products come from?
Our forest honey is born & sourced from India's most pristine and biodiverse wild landscapes, including the Saranda, Abujmahar, Kandhamal, Western Ghats and the forests of Nagaland & Assam. They are sustainably harvested with care by skilled indigenous tribes and local communities using traditional methods, honoring an ancient bond with nature. What you receive is a rare, luxury-grade treasure: 100% natural, pure, and completely unprocessed, without a single chemical or preservative. An authentic piece of heritage, curated for your home.
- Is raw honey better than processed honey?
Raw honey is generally preferred by many natural food lovers because it retains more of its original enzymes, pollen, aroma, and natural compounds. Processed honey is often heated and filtered, which may reduce some of these naturally occurring properties.
- How can you test honey purity at home?
Home tests like the water test, flame test, or thumb test are popular, but they are not scientifically reliable. The most accurate way to verify honey purity is through certified laboratory analysis, which checks for adulteration, moisture, sugar profile, and overall quality.
- Why does honey keep changing in taste, color & texture?
The taste of raw forest honey depends on the type of trees and flowers the bees gather nectar from. Every plant species produces nectar with unique natural characteristics, which gives each honey variety its own distinct flavor, aroma, color, and texture.
- What is shelf life of a honey?
Honey never really goes off as it contains a high amount of glucose and fructose. We print best before dates on all our packaging and recommend that the honey is consumed before this date. The best before or expiry date on a honey package is a legal requirement. In India, consumer law requires honey to have a best before date having said this if honey is stored in airtight food grade container it can last indefinitely. That is why the honey found in the pyramids was still edible.
- Can forest honey ferment?
Yes, forest honey can ferment if its moisture content is high or if it is stored improperly. Raw forest honey contains natural yeasts, so if harvested early or exposed to humidity, it may develop bubbles, a sour smell, or slight fizz. Properly matured and well-stored forest honey usually remains stable naturally.
- How can I de-crystallize Honey safely?

To decrystallize honey, place the jar in warm water and let it slowly return to liquid form. Avoid direct flame, boiling, or microwaving, as excessive heat can damage natural enzymes and nutrients in raw honey.

18. Remove the FAQ – ‘What is difference between blossom honey and HoneyDew Honey’? Makes no sense as we don’t sell blossom honey.

19. We can create one more tab on the website like ‘Know about Honey’ or ‘Honey knowledge bank’ – There is good material on Royal Bee Brothers website, Honey & Spice and on the internet. Royal Bee Brothers webpage literally has posted many links of the validated research reports about raw wild forest honeys. (Not urgent for FSSAI, can be done later before launch)

<https://www.royalbeebrothers.com/blogs/everything-you-need-to-know-about-honey/forest-honey-benefits-vs-regular-honey>

20. Any web page you refer of a D2C FMCG brand – Eatopia, Honey&Spice, Honeyveda etc, the immediate impression once you first click their web page and see the first page is that web page is product heavy & USP(key differentiator) heavy with product or photos combos on the front page OR some picturisation of a narrative, story which immediately connects with the brand – product – philosophy. I feel our website we need to build that attractiveness with creative visualizations, SUMO mascot logos, Products OR our USP visualization. (Not urgent for FSSAI but we need to build this later before the launch)

21. Combos and gifting product combinations are not decided yet but that’s for sure that we are doing trial packs of all the 5 honeys in 60g glass jars as written before. Also, we can take a combination of 3 honeys which you have appropriately taken like ‘Wild Forest essentials Combo’ of 1. Organic Wild forest Honey 2. Tribal Forest Honey and 3. HoneyDew Honey. Other set could be the Ultimate premium & rare DUO – 1. Raktbeej & 2. Stingless Bee Honey. All these combos will be both in 250g and 500g combinations. Accordingly you can create the images, the details whereabouts in those sections giving a meaning to the combinations by briefly explaining their benefits and features.
